INTRODUCTION

According to World Health Organization Health is defined as "A State complete of physical, social and mental well - being and not and merely absence of disease or infirmity".

You may have heard the word 'health' used in day-to-day conversations. We all use it very often. Sometimes you may say, 'My grandfather is in good health' or you may use it to describe people, for example, 'my neighbor has a healthy attitude' or a 'healthy relationship'.

You must have heard the saying that 'a healthy population is the wealth of every nation'. Health is of primary concern to all individuals as well as the community at large. Good health requires certain efforts and cannot be purchased. In this unit, we will start our discussion by looking at the concept of health and its classification and discuss the characteristics of good health and the various factors that go into maintaining it.. What is Hygiene refers to a set of practices adopted by a community that are associated with the Preservation of health and healthy living: your own cleanliness and that of those around you. You will also learn about the classification of hygiene.

In addition, we shall look at issues of environmental pollution, and the common causes of pollution in the community. Lastly, we shall identify common health issues in the community. In a nutshell, we can say that this unit addresses health, hygiene, and pollution, "holistically" from the point of view of the family and community. The unit will guide you on the range of actions that individuals can take to protect themselves from the effects of unhygienic and polluted environment..

RECOMMENDATIONS

The above study reveals that these community groups are prevention of seasonal diseases and good health condition.

- Indeed, proper personal hygiene and health practices are one of the best approaches to control communicable diseases which will be mainly spread through water, food, personal contacts and microorganisms such as viruses, bacteria, and protozoa etc.

- We suggest Daily proper maintain
 - 1. Brush your teeth, cut your nails
 - 2. Have a bath daily, wear clean clothes
 - 3. Eat nutritious food
 - 4. Have regular eating habits
 - 5. Follow a disciplined life
 - 6. Exercise regularly
 - 7. Use of mosquito net
 - 8. Sanitary condition and proper disposal of human excreta
 - 9. Cover your cough, sneeze
 - 10. to take BCG vaccine

- The following are some of the personal hygiene activities that we recommended:
- Taking daily baths: Bathing regularly and wearing clean clothes.
- Dirt is a place for germs to grow. So bathing regularly keeps your body free of dirt and germs. This is particularly important in climates that make people sweat a lot.
- Regular toilet habits: Regular bowel movements keep us free of wastes generated inside our body. Develop this habit in your children by giving them the right food, plenty of water and by making them do proper exercises.

- Washing and cleaning our feet when you return home. This
- washes off the germs collected from outside. In traditional homes in Kerala, a special vessel filled with water is kept at the doorstep to wash feet thoroughly before entering the home. This is a good
- practice that ensures domestic and personal hygiene. Washing your feet and drying them, particularly between the toes, before going to bed, and cleaning and regularly clipping the toe nails, helps to keep many germs away from you and your home.
- Brushing your teeth in the morning when you get up and at night before you go to bed. After eating food, some food particles may remain stuck to your teeth. These food particles allow germs to grow, which can harm your gums and teeth, and cause bad breath. Brushing your teeth twice daily and rinsing your mouth every time after food prevents these germs from growing.
- Washing hair, cleaning eyes, nose, ears and nails: Regular washing and combing of hair helps to prevent dirt accumulation, and keeps germs and lice away. Nails should be clipped and cleaned regularly. Nail biting is unhygienic and must be avoided. Wash your eyes and nose daily with clean cold water. Wash your ear lobes and see that your nose and ears are kept clean always. Avoid inserting objects into your ears to clean or scratch your ears as it is dangerous and can lead to deafness.
- Respiratory hygiene: correct respiratory and hand hygiene while coughing and sneezing reduces the spread of germs, particularly during the 'cold and flu' season. Carry tissues and use them to
- cover your mouth and nose when you cough or sneeze. Remember to properly dispose them off as soon as possible. Wash your hands thoroughly using soap. If soaps or disinfectants are not available, you can use affordable mud or ash as an

- alternative.

Abstain from bad habits: such as smoking, chewing of betel nut, pan and tobacco and drinking of alcohol. Such unhealthy habits may lead to health problems such as liver damage, kidney failure, heart failure, cancer, and mental and social problems. So avoid such habits at all costs.

You can be a role model to your children by following these hygienic practices that keep you healthy.

Hand hygiene: this is one habit that is taken for granted by many. Though very simple, it is a very important activity that can work wonders in keeping you healthy. Hand washing is considered to be the most important step in maintaining hygiene and protecting health. Always wash your hands before and after handling food. Eating food with dirty hands may make us ill because the dirt in our hands and nails might carry certain disease-causing germs. Teach children to wash their hands thoroughly before and after food, and also after going to the toilet. Washing hands with soap makes them germ free. Use tissues to catch coughs and sneezes, and wash your hands thoroughly afterwards.

Here are a few tips that will help maintain domestic hygiene.

The following tips, although common knowledge, are meant to serve as a reminder so that we can practice them regularly.

Clean home: Homes should be kept clean and free from dirt, flies and germs.

Food hygiene: Many health problems arise out of consumption of unhygienic food. You might have read in newspapers about the hospitalization (even leading to death) of people due to food

1. poisoning, eating food prepared under unhygienic conditions from hotels and street food.

The five key principles of food hygiene, according to WHO are:

Prevent contaminating food with pathogens spreading from people, pets and pests.

Separate raw and cooked foods to prevent contaminating the cooked food.

Cook food for the appropriate length of time and at the appropriate temperature to kill pathogens

Store food at the proper temperature

Use safe water and raw materials

CONCLUSION

The health and hygiene are the two factors that play an important role in human's life. The lifespan of human beings is mostly based on the individual's health.

The health is maintained by taking hygienic food at proper interval of time.

The morality rate can be decreased if the person consume only hygienic food and maintain his health in good condition. This is because, most of the food items acts as medicines for certain diseases. Thus, being healthy and consuming hygienic food is essential.

Good personal hygiene is one of the best ways to protect oneself from getting illnesses. Maintaining good personal hygiene will also help prevent you from spreading diseases to other people. Good hygiene lowers a person's risk for diseases and illnesses commonly spread through viruses and bacteria.

A woman with dark hair tied back, wearing a blue t-shirt and a black backpack, stands in profile facing a large digital screen mounted on a wall. She is pointing her right index finger towards the screen. The screen displays a document with the heading "DEPARTMENT OF BOTANY" and "TITLE OF THE PROJECT: 'HEALTH AND HYGIENE'". Below the title, there are several columns of text, which appear to be a list or a series of notes. To the left of the screen, on the wall, there is a power outlet with two black cables plugged into it. The overall scene suggests a classroom or a presentation setting.
